

EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, FEB. 18, 1858.

An official table shows that the expenditures of the Federal Government during the quarter ending December 31, 1857, were about ten millions of dollars more than the receipts in the same time. Of the disbursements, $3,284,448.66 were of an ordinary character. In the month of October the return of government stock for redemption was quite rapid, and ran up to more than two millions in a short time. The surplus, however, ran down so fast and so far under this demand that the Secretary was compelled to withdraw his proposals and redeem no more stock. The rapid decrease in the revenue from customs changed the entire financial programme of the Treasury Department, and forced the Government into an issue of Treasury notes.

The President has seen the nomination of Col. Johnston, of the Utah expedition, as brigadier general, to the Senate for confirmation.

NEWS FROM MEXICO.—The following extract from La Sociedad—reactionist or conservative journal at the capital—of 22d, affords a short history of the hostilities now happily or unhappily ended for a brief period:

Since the 11th inst., to date (22d) have passed eleven days of mortal anguish for Mexico. The city has been converted into an immense fortress. On the same 11th Comonfort again and desparingly called to his aid the enthusiastic (extreme) Democrats of Mexico. His forces have been until yesterday face to face with the pronunciados, covering his different posts. On the 15th the fight commenced with all arms. The morning of the 16th the fire was ceremoniously (or seriously) renewed on both sides; then after an armistice, which terminated at 4 P.M., the combat was renewed in a more brisk and general manner, being prolonged for an hour and a half. At 8 o'clock of the same evening a new suspension of hostilities was stipulated, the duration of which was forty-eight hours, the object of which was to enter into conventions (agreements) proposed by Comonfort.

At 8 o'clock in the evening of the 18th hostilities were accordingly reopened between the belligerent forces. The 19th it continued with more vigor, the fire being well sustained and general in all the positions. On this day Gen. Liceaga, with his troops and some others of the government, joined the ranks of the army of restoration. But day before yesterday, the 20th—a terrible day among those which signalize the history of our revolutions—was the most notable, and perhaps will decide the great question of the principles of public order.

On the morning of that day a powerful column, commanded by the chiefs Osollo and Miramón, saluted forth from the citadel to attack the strong position of the Acordada. The assault began immediately, with an activity, order, and decision that proved irresistible. The hostile position could not long resist the musketry and heavy grape of the regenerating troops, and it was speedily occupied in full force, all the soldiers of the garrison becoming prisoners of war.

Dismay spread thence forth in all the other hostile positions; in them all was disorder and discontent. The dispersion soon became general, the fire continuing in the meantime against the points occupied by the government. At seven o'clock in the evening, Comonfort gave his last order as general-in-chief; the forces in San Francisco (a couvent) evacuated that strong point; all other points were successively evacuated, and the entire force (i.e., of the government) concentrated in the palace.

Finally dawn broke on the 21st, and the entire city was already delivered over to the discretion of the regenerating troops. Comonfort had abandoned the palace, going forth a fugitive, accompanied by a few persons, and Mexico began to breathe freely, and to yield herself peacefully to her accustomed activity.

The foregoing journal of operations says never a word about the great loss of life which must have been the inevitable result of thousands of people shooting at each other for days even though Mexican marksmen are generally snugly encircled behind four foot walls.

A junta of representatives to name a Chief of State, in conformity to the plan of Tacubaya, was appointed.

The junta named as Provisional President General Zuloaga by twenty-six votes against one for General Lecheaury, and another (one) for General Santa Anna. This election took place at 7 o'clock on the evening of the 22d.

Thus I have given an epitome of the eleven memorable days, and will now proceed to other branches of the same all absorbing theme. I will here observe, before it escapes memory, that of the representatives of the different States whose names are given above perhaps not one fourth have ever been in or are at all known in the States which they are supposed to represent, nor have the States been consulted in the nominations. This is "representation" with a vengeance, and I mention it in passing that you may know what to expect from some of those States when they shall be heard from.

This afternoon our Governor has published an order commanding all foreigners within the State immediately to report themselves to the nearest authority. Also all persons not in public employ are to be liable to their主人 in forty-eight hours, under penalty in such cases made and provided. This, taken in connection with the fact that our gates have been closed for some days, makes us feel very much as though we were in a state of siege—though I rather fancy the upshot of it all will be the authorities will turn a triple somerset and disown over again—i.e., swallow the plan of Tacubaya, Zuloaga and all, in a word, go the entire swine—bristles, tufts, tail, &c.

But the National Guard and Young Mexico—won't they resist? Bless your soul, no. The rank and file of the National Guard have had enough of playing soldier the last two and a half years. Besides what have they to fight for? There is no principle involved of particular interest to them—comprising, as the corps does, the laboring classes—and the whole affair originating and ending in personal ambition. Moreover, they have no leader, their officers are not worth a pinch of gunpowder—the men knowing by past experience they'll leave them in the lurch the moment they fancy there's any danger to their precious selves. At least as corra la voz. Of course I speak of the National Guard of this place. Better things may be expected from other parts of the republic.

I have thus given a rough sketch of existing affairs. It requires no vaticinor to predict the immediate result. A prophet of the past can easily do that. You may look out then for a grand row before a great while among the generals who have seized the government. Each one will wish to be boss. No one will yield to the others. What then? Why, they all recognize in "his Most Serene Highness" the head devil of the entire pandemicum, and will hasten to recall him. He'll come back very reluctantly, of course (he always does), play over his rôle again for a year or two, beg his new plunder, and hope for the fourth or fifth time—I really forget which. Certainly the past would justify such a conclusion.

(Translated for the New York Herald from La Prensa, of Havana, of Feb. 7.)

By the steamer Mexico we are in receipt of newspapers from the City of Mexico to the 25th and from Vera Cruz to the 30th of January.

The Pronunciamento of the brigade Zuloaga at last triumphed in the capital, the troops of Comonfort having left it on the night of the 20th. General M. L. Zuloaga has been elected Provisional President.

Several States and generals adhered to the Pronunciamento of the capital, while others seem disposed to remain faithful to the opposite party.

The Siglo XIX of Jan. 11 has the following particulars: The friars of San Francisco have been accused of the project of setting fire to the artillery park, and thus to destroy the chief means of combating the reactionary party. In view of this accusation General Trias took the necessary measures for preventing such a catastrophe. Afterwards the same friars had been seized in the act of bribing the troops, and consequently measures were taken for shutting them up in their convent without allowing them any communication with the exterior.

One of the agents of Santa Anna, General Cortes, was arrested at the point San Francisco, and is now rigorously imprisoned in the barracks of the defenders of the order.

The Extraordinary of Mexico, communicates the very important intelligence that Yucatan has solicited the intervention of the United States in the conflict which is wasting the peninsula.

The Last Days of the Comonfort Dictatorship in Mexico—In our last summary of events we gave an account of a trial that had occurred in the capital up to the night of the 16th of January, at which time an agreement was entered into between the fighting parties for a suspension of hostilities for the space of 48 hours, in order to afford time to take into consideration certain propositions made by Gen. Comonfort.

At 7 o'clock on the night of the 18th of January the 48 hours had expired, and the armistice agreed upon for that space of time was at an end. No agreement, in the meantime, had been entered into between the hostile parties, and consequently at the time above mentioned hostilities were resumed between the belligerents. On the 19th the fighting was carried on with increased energy, Gen. Liceaga having, with his own troops and some others belonging to the government, gone over to the opposite ranks, and joined the opponents of the government.

The 20th of January was the decisive day. A strong column of troops, commanded by General Osollo and Miramón, marched out of the fortress and attacked the convent of Arredondo with great fury.

This place was not able to withhold the attack for any length of time, and it was very soon taken by assault, when all the troops by whom it had been garrisoned were taken prisoners. This event disheartened and filled with dismay all the other garrisons of the government wherever they were posted, and a general scattering and dispersion of them all took place.

It was at 7 o'clock on that evening when Comonfort, for the last time gave his last order to the army as general-in-chief. The troops in the convent of San Francisco were ordered to evacuate that position. All the other places occupied by the government troops were shortly afterwards evacuated in the same manner, and the troops which still adored the government were concentrated on one point, viz: in the palace of the government.

On the morning of the 21st the whole city was surrendered by Comonfort to his opponents. During the night he had left the place, and gone forth a fugitive and an exile, with one or two followers.

On the same day, the fighting was ended, Gen. Zuloaga appointed a meeting of representatives, who were required to proceed immediately to the election of a Provisional President.

The result was the almost unanimous election of Gen. Zuloaga, the author of the rebellion and of the plan entitled "The Reform Plan of Tacubaya."

Having thus been elected President, ad interim, Gen. Zuloaga proceeded to take the oath of office before the representatives on the 22d of January, after which he assumed the charge and duties of President of the Republic.

In order to render our narration complete, we proceed to give the following extracts from the journals of Mexico, with the details they contain, which comes to us, however, in an incomplete form.

We read as follows in the Diario de Avisos:

In the church of St. Francisco, on the further side of the Boulevards, three bomb shells which were thrown into the church exploded and did considerable damage to the organ, breaking a number of its pipes. In Minería the hand grenades did a great deal of damage. They were thrown from the fortress with such a well-directed aim that four of them fell upon the observatory, where the enemy had taken a position in order to fire down upon the church of La Concepción. One side of the hospital of Tereros has the marks of five different, well-aimed volleys of cannone, some of which made a breach in the wall and penetrated as far as the shop of Serrurero Penunuri.

Several hand grenades were thrown, with admirable skill in the pointing, from the towers of the governmental palace. One of these, which was thrown upon the church of St. Francisco, fell inside the steeple of the church, and killed instantly ten to a dozen soldiers who were there, completely clearing away all the sand bags which had been fixed up on the tower for defence, not leaving so much as one of them.

Beside various other damages, there are quantities of whole blocks in the city which have been fired upon and large breaches made in the houses, by the special orders of Señor Comonfort.

SINGULAR ADVENTURE.—The Boston Journal relates the following which occurred on board the brig Helen Jane, at that port from Omoa, Truxillo:

Capt. Nickerson relates a singular adventure with the steward of his vessel on the outward passage which somewhat enlivened the usual dull monotony of ocean life. It appears that a white man having American protection, and giving his name as Hawes Crowell of West Dennis, Cape Cod, shipped at this port in the capacity of steward, and received his advance wages before going on board. The steward proceeded to sea, and on the morning of the first day out the steward was missing, suppos'd by all on board to have fallen into the sea during the night, and drowned. Accordingly another man was appointed his duty, and everything went on without suspicion. The voyage continued prosperously, and nothing occurred to admit the captain that his cargo was leaking in a very unusual manner, and becoming daily beautifully less by an operation which might well be compared to some late financial maneuvering ashore.

It seems, however, that after many days one of the crew accidentally discovered that the cargo had been broken into, and an empty basket of champagne was found, with other indications of robbery. The captain's attention was immediately called to the fact, and he of course suspected the crew of committing the depredation, and instantly called them to account; but nothing could be elicited from the investigation to fix the crime on any of the crew, who stoutly denied all knowledge of the master. Thus the affair rested until their arrival at Truxillo, twenty-two days after leaving Boston. On the first night after anchoring, the crew were suddenly startled by the appearance in the forecastle of the lost steward, and so firmly convinced were the frightened sailors of the death of their shipmate that they all instantly fled on deck from the supposed apparition, and told the captain.

These fears, however, were soon quieted, for the steward had really appeared, and, upon being questioned, confessed that he had secreted himself in the hold on the first day out, under the influence of delirium tremens, and for twenty-two days following had lived luxuriously on champagne, raisins, ham, &c., dining sumptuously every day, and had enjoyed on shore what would be called a "bender." He consumed during the voyage eight baskets of champagne, six boxes of raisins, and other things in proportion. He was left in the hands of the U.S. Consul, and would be sent home for trial. The loss to the captain will amount to about $250.

Important Decision.—We call the attention of shipowners and furnishers of supplies to ships, to the decision of Judge Betts, published in our columns this morning, in the case of the Albany, as being a clear statement of the revolution effected by the U.S. Supreme Court last winter in the law of liens upon vessels. Judge Betts says that the rule in this district, while the decision in the case of Pratt vs. Reed remains unmodified, must be that no one can have a lien upon a vessel owned out of the State, for supplies furnished to her, unless the owner of the vessel has neither funds nor credit here, by which such supplies can be obtained, except on the credit of the vessel herself. We venture to say that of the numerous cases which have been heretofore enforced against vessels in the large experience of the U.S. District Court in this District, not one in a hundred could have been maintained had this doctrine been earlier announced.

New York Times.

I was Mistaken.—A very learned man has said: "The three hardest words to pronounce in the English language are, I was mistaken!" and when Frederick the Great wrote his letter to the Senate, "I have just lost a great battle, and it was entirely my fault," Goldsmith says: "This confession displayed more greatness than all his victories."

An exchange notices the marriage of Miss Angelina Graham, daughter of the great vocalist, and adds: "We congratulate the bridegroom upon his privilege of reposing, even on earth, upon A. Graham's bosom."

ITEMS.

"I never complained of my condition," says the Persian poet Sadi, "but—when my feet were bare, and I had no money to buy shoes—I laid me without feet, and became contented with my lot."

A sealed letter of introduction read thus: "Dear Sir.—The bearer of this letter, Mr. James B. Smith, goes to New York to purchase goods. I can recommend him as good for all he pays cash for."

A ragged and weather-beaten loafer crawled in before the fire in a public house, and seating himself began to cough tremendously. "Miser," says a bystander, "you've got a cold." "I have?" said the other, "for my honor, I'm glad of it—I'm so wretched poor, it's a consolation to get anything."

Celtic Superstition.—While Sheriff Ansley Wright was taking a census of the last year's crop of children in Northampton, a few years ago, he called at the residence of an Irish family, and inquired of the woman of the house if any children were born in that house during the year, but could not induce her to inform him. He inquired the reason of her refusal. She answered, that, soon after he called on her, she was equally as unwilling to tell him the number of children as she was to tell him the name of her husband. He asked her if she had any children, and she replied, "Yes, I have a son." "How old is he?" "He is three months old." "Is he a boy?" "Yes, he is a boy." "What is his name?" "I don't know his name." "What is his name?" "I don't know his name." "What is his name?" "I don't know his name." "What is his name?" "I don't know his name."

After having in vain urged her to give the desired information, he asked her how old her youngest child was. "Three months," said she. Mr. Wright was satisfied.

May is consider'd an unfortunate marrying month.

A down east editor says a girl was asked, not long since, to unite herself in the silken tie to a brisk lad, who named May in his proposal. The lady tenderly intimated that May was an unlucky month for marrying. "Well, make it June then," she replied.

The swain, anxious to accommodate her, paused a moment, hesitated, cast down her eyes, and said, with a blush, "Wouldn't April do well?"

This singular announcement appears in Pennsylvania paper, under the marriage head: "In Scott, Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, 2d ultimo, at the residence of Elam Woodward, by the Spirit of Chas. Morris, through Medium, and in presence of a large number of Spiritualists, Stiles Van Hooser and Mary Louisa Lake, both of the city of Carbonado." Do the laws of Pennsylvania authorize spirits to be the match-makers?

EVENING BULLETIN.

Purchase of M. Vernon—The Grand Lodge of Masons of Virginia have adopted a plan of cooperation with the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association in the purchase of Mount Vernon. It is by a small but adequate assessment on each Mason in the United States, (one dollar each) with the single condition that they shall have full liberty to occupy the premises one day in each year. There is stated to be an aggregate of 350,000 members of the fraternity in the United States. The "Southern Matron," as president of the Ladies' Mt. Vernon Association, has gratefully accepted the proposition, and a circular on the subject has been sent to each Grand Lodge in the United States from the Grand Lodge of Virginia.

DAILY REVIEW OF THE MARKET.

LOUISVILLE, February 18, '53.
